

19 september 1999

Published on FIDEL Soldier of Ideas (<http://www.fidelcastro.cu>)

"The new communications technologies have divided the world into those who are, and those who are not connected to the global networks. Being connected to this knowledge and participating in a true globalization of information that amounts to real sharing as opposed to exclusion, and that puts an end to the widespread 'brain drain', is a strategic imperative for the survival of our cultural identities in the coming century."

References to the original: Message to participants in the Ministerial Meeting of the Group of 77. 19 september 1999

Source URL: <http://www.fidelcastro.cu/en/citas/19-september-1999>